

Shauntell Cullen

For two years prior to being diagnosed with breast cancer I volunteered and was on the committee for Komen Idaho. In August of 2012, at age 33, I was diagnosed with Stage IV breast cancer. For the next two years, I was constantly in chemo, radiation, or surgery. Once I started feeling better, I wanted to bring more attention to Metastatic Breast Cancer. I struggled with participating in The Race for the Cure because I was not a 'survivor'. I was still fighting, and always will be as my cancer is incurable. It has become very important to me to have an awareness of metastatic breast cancer at The Race for the Cure. Komen is very open to helping incorporate this important diagnosis into their race. Their willingness to integrate forever fighters means that I will Race for The Cure.